Robert Byrd Wins Kennedy Loses Post As Democratic Whip

By Spencer Rich

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (WP).—Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia handed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy the most stunning defeat of his political career today by ousting him from the post of Senate Democratic whip as the 92d Congress convened.

In his 31-24 victory, Sen. Byrd put together a coalition of Sonthern and Western Democrats more ideologically in tune with his conservative views plus a sprinkling of Northern liberals dissatisfied with Sen. Kennedy's spotty performance as whip over the last two years.

On the Republican side, the minority leader, Sen. Hugh Scott of On the Republican side, the initiality ittail, other tables of the process of the 19 vote.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ron Ziegler was asked if the President bad any comment on the Byrd and Scott victories.

He replied that the President felt that the choice of leaders was ngress's business and that Mr. Nixon's objective this year, as in the past, was to "work closely with the leadership."

WARSAW, Jan. 21 (UPI).-West German opposition leader Rainer Barzel today warned Polish Premier Piotr Jarossewicz not to couot on ratification of the Bonn-Warsaw treaty, his press spokesman, Eduard Ackermann, reported.

Mr. Barzel pointed out that "no one knows when or whether the treaty will be ratified." Mr. Ackermann said, referring to the goodwill treaty signed by West German Chancellor Willy Brandt Dec. 7. He said Mr. Barzel explained the views of the Bonn opposition parties "in a clear, frank and even harsh manner."

He also suggested that Germans who were expelled from territories incorporated into Poland since World War II should be allowed to visit their birthplaces, Mr. Ackermann said.

Paris Peace Talks End 100th Session, 2d Year

PARIS, Jan. 21 (WP) .- The 100th session of the deadlocked Vietnam peace talks was beld today.

After the five-hour session, devoted almost entirely to prepared speeches reiterating well-known positions, U.S. press spokesman Stephen Ledogar said that nothing transpired of any news value."

South Vletnamese spokesman Nguyen Trieu Dan noted that, apart from marking the end of two years of talks as well as the end of the Vietnamese "year of the dog," the 100th session "did not differ at all from any of the others."

The Communist delegates, for their part, placed all the blame on the Nixon administration. Xuan Thuy for North Vietnam, echoing charges made earlier this week in Hanoi, protested a series of U.S. bombings of North Vietnamese territory between Jan. 8 and 17. Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong attacked the "absurd and insolent" U.S. demand for mutual withdrawal of North Vietnamese as well as American forces.

Because of next week's Tet holiday, the 101st session of tha talks was scheduled for Thursday Feb. 4, instead of next Thursday. This will begin the "year of the plg." which Vletnamese generally are said to regard as an omen of prosperity and peace.

He is 93d in seniority, and his small staff of 22 is crammed amid New York Striker cardboard boxes and file cabinets in five rooms, but Hubert Horatio Humphrey is, as he put it yester-day afternoon, "back home."

He is down to 170 pounds. His hair is longer, tufting modishly down alongside his ears ("Frankly, I need a haircut"). But he is, at 59, the same Hubert Humphrey who entered the Senate in 1949, assumed the vice-presidency in 1965, returned to private life two years ago and who is starting all over again today as the junior senator from Minnesota.

Hell Be Heard

President Nixon, said the man who lost to him in 1968, "is going to hear from me."

Indeed, the process began in earnest yesterday. In an interview in Mr. Humphrey's office and later. during a stroll through Cepitol corridors, he called on his Democratic colleagues to "put their minds not only on how to attack Nixon, but on how to attack prob-lems. If we do that," he said and Nixon's one of the problems of course, we can show the country the Democrats can govern."

He sharply criticized Mr. Nixon's timetable for withdrawing American troops from Southeast Asia and worried aloud that the United States was becoming entangled in Cambodia and Laos.

"I hesitate to be critical," Mr. Humphrey said. "I'm not without cars in that area"-a recollection of his own support for the John-son administration's escalation of American involvement in Vietnam. But he added:

"The President is missing a golden opportunity for the Amer-ican people. We just have to make a decision to get out (of Vietnam) and then get out. We don't have to epologize for that at all." There is no other way to end American involvement, he said.

Simonstown and Singapore

In Singapore, Prime Minister Heath has apparently delayed a crucial showdown within the Commonwealth over the explosive issue of arms for South Africa by the not uncharacteristic device of appointing a committee to study the subject. But the problem of how much Britain is willing to pay in terms of Commonwealth relations for the use of the Simonstown naval base, and how much the African states in "free association" with the Commonwealth are willing to expend in the same currency to block assistance to Cape Town, remains very much an open question.

Underlying the matter of Simonstown, as it is being handled in Singapore, lies the very nature of the Commonwealth itself. After the great conference of 1925, which established the Commonwealth as comprising "uutonomous communities within the British Empire," a definition later confirmed by the statute of Westminster, Arthor Balfour reloted the idea that this arrangement was "devised rather to make mutual interference impossible than to make mutual ccoperation easy." But under the altered conditions of 1971, it is the British who are arguing for something very like that position, by contesting the right of Commonwealth conferences to vote resolutions binding on the membership.

But if the cnference cannot do that, what is their function and that of the Commonwealth itself? The members comprise a large segment of the world. But, as if to confirm the theory that the British Empire was acquired in a fit of absent-mindedness, they are extremely diverse, and their formal bonds to one another are both tenuoue and varied. Some recognize Elizabeth II ae "Queen by the grace of God, head of the Commonwealth." A few simply as Queen and Commonwealth head, and a substantial number of republics acknowledge only her symbolic role in the Commonwealth.

Even the cultural traditions of Britain, which all the members share in different degrees, produce a variety of points of view. It would be interesting, for example, to trace the effect upon, say, the Indian sobcontinent of those two very British, bot very different, institutions: Sandhurst and the London School of Economics. And it is students in Britain from Sierra Leone who have just performed a coup d'état in exile, so to speak, by seizing their government's offices in London.

Yet with all its anomalies, all its complexity. the Commonwealth is an institution of enormoue past and potential usefulness to a fragmented world. With a common lingua franca-English-a common background of law and many ideals of government, an economic nexus of beneficial strength, it can be a means of tempering animosities among its, members and of cooperation for mutual benefits. Its dissolution would be a tragedy. its constructive reinforcement a boon, for the world.

Escalation in the Air

"The only American activity in Cambodia after July 1," President Nixon assured the nation last June. "will be air missions to interdict the movement of enemy troops and material where I find that is necessary to protect the lives and security of our men in South Vietnam."

Until this week, American military men insisted they were adhering to that doctrine, although as long ago as last August reports from the field made it clear that U.S. airmen were going well beyond "interdiction" to farnish close fire support to faltering Cambodian ground forces. Now, with carrier-borne American helicopters, B-52 bombers and other American aircraft openly committed in support of South Vietnamese, and Cambodian troops battling to reopen a key highway from the sea to Phnom Penh, the Pentagon has taken off the wraps and disclosed the administration's intention to employ the full range of its air power in Cambodia.

This stretches to the limit the President's pledge of last June. It is contrary to Vicewhich should be vigorously pursued by other members of Congress who have been striving to prevent just this kind of creeping involvement in another Southeast Asian flasco.

When Cambodian troops failed to clear the roadblock, South Vietnamese forces were thrown into the battle. Now American air forces have been sent to the rescue. Can anyone imagine this will be the last such rescue mission?

WIASSINGTON .- The election of connections formed in long service Hale Boggs as majority leader his been put down as another victory for the old gang in the House. In fact, it signals the ensigence of a far wider group asility dominant force. That group is the majority caucus-unboated and to a large extent uncontrolled. Mr. Boggs, to be sure, was the Establishment candidate in the struggle to replace Carl Albert when Mr. Albert took John Mo-Connack's place as speaker. As majority whip in the last Congress, Boggs was part of the Mc-Connack-Albert team. In the contest for majority leader he had the support of many of the most influential Democrats, including the chairman of the most powerful committee—Wilhur Mills of Ways and Means

But the other candidates for majority leader also had the back-ing of important figures in the regular power structure. For in-stance, Morris Udall, the chief challenger, was nominated by Edward Boland of Massachusetts, a key figure in the Appropriations Committee and formerly one of Mr. Boggs's chief lieutenants in the whip office.

Moreover, in pushing their man in the caucus, Boggs's Establish-ment backers said some distinctly un-Establishment things. Edward Hebert, the fellow member from Louisians, who nominated Boggs, praised his courage in-of all things ill-calculated to appeal , to regulize breaking with the South on race issues. Mr. Mills, in his seconding speech, praised Bogga for breaking with Ways and Means tradition to lead the fight for curbing oil-depletion allowances. "I myself wouldn't have had that kind of courage," Mills reportedly Outside Assistance These strange pitches were made precisely because Boggs could not rely on organization support. He went outside the structure to pick. up many non-organization Demo-crats. One of his strongest backers, for instance, was the archetype of anti-Establishmentarianism -Shirley Chisholm, the black woman reformer from Brooklyn. As Mr. Udall himself conceded, Boggs won because he proved himself a "national Democrat" with appeal to the whole caucus.

The power of the whole caucus was further demonstrated in the victory of Olin Teague of Texas over Dan Rostenkowski for chairman of the caucus. Mr. Teague, who voted for Mr. Rostenkowski, called it "the damnest fluke I ever saw," and it is true that going into the meeting Rostenkowski was a heavy favorite to win re-election two years ago. Last year, a resolution tion of the full caucus caused pas sage of a 15 percent increase in Social Security payments as agains the 7 percent favored by the ad ministration and the 10 percen favored by chairman Mills of Way, and Means. This year the caucus will be the theater of action for major proce dural reform. Indeed, it we thanks to a caucus resolution the the House, instead of trying to de everything in a mad scramble or opening day, met three days be fore the start of the 92d Congress to do its procedural business.

In the past, the caucus has been chiefly the instrument of reform minded Democrats working agains committee chairmen. Many chair men have resented these tacticseven to the point of not deigning to attend the monthly cauci meetings.

The recent votes suggest the the leaders are now prepared ta work within the caucus system and that concessions will probably take much of the steam out a reform. For, like most of the people in the country, most Demo cratio House members are pretig setisfied with things as they are and prefer to change. if at all at a slow pace. Thus the emergence of the caucus assures far wide participation by ordinary member in big decisions-but not necessarily

International Opinion

The Oil Imbroglio

Barring a coup de théâtre, French-Algerian negotiations are now unlikely to result in a direct agreement between the two countries. The French government has rallied to the position jointly taken by the Western oil companies because it could accept neither an embezzlement of Sahara oil fields nor the risk of encumbering our economy with an unendurable burden in agreeing to Algerian demands on oil prices and taxes. By acting that way our government has ended a policy which, eince Evian, aimed at establishing special ties between our country and Algeria-a policy primarily intended to insure France's independent fuel supply. It is still too early to judge the consequences of this decision.

-From Paris-Jour.

The Singapore Conference

Quite obviously the presence of Soviet warships off Singapore, where the Commonwealth heads are meeting, was Moscow's idea of fanning the fire of resentment against the British intention of lifting the arms embargo placed on South Africa. It was a rather weak on-the-spot show put on for the benefit of British Prime Minister Heath, who is most concerned about the Soviet naval buildup in the Indian Ocean. -From the Standard (Hong Kong).

In many ways it is an embarrassing topic; and so it should be. In practice the Commonwealth is less noble than it thinks it is and would like to be. No Commonwealth country operates an apartheid system or allows one race to impose its will on another, as the South Africans do, or the Rhodesians or the Portuguese.

On the other hand Australia keeps the blacks out. Kenya discriminates against Chairman Mao, recently met friend-Indians, Nigerians have been known to maltreat Ibos, and Greek Cypriots to maltreat Turkish ones. Whatever happens to the Zambian declaration, in the end the Commonwealth prime ministers will have gone through the healthy process of admitting their own shortcomings. It will be embarrassment suffered in a good cause.

Criticisms Itemized

The specific criticiams of the conservative publications include the President's family assistance plan (which they describe as a measure to double or triple the welfare rolls), his promised national health insurance plan, his accep-tance of a heavy-deficit "full employment" budget and the steady American withdrawal from Vietnam, without even the pretense of a military victory.

The proposal for federal revenuesharing with states and cities, which the President is expected to make the centerpiece of his 1971 legislative program, is one which might be thought to appeal to conservatives. 'Fashion. Valentino's Hollywood

By Eugenia Sheppard ROME, Jan. 21.-Valentino's new collection is Hollywood but with plenty of class. Now every women can be a star ut one of his big chiffon ahirt coals that fails open to show the rest of her in striped sequin hot pants and black lace tights.

The late night opening in Valentino's salon was any Technicolor producer's dream. Invitations had requested: Please come in something red. So the audlenre was already dressed to go with the new clothes. Audrey Repburn tucked a red rose into her blark velvet dog collar and Ira Furstenberg addrd a red feather butterily. Consoelo Crespi put on red boots and her daughter, Pilar, came in Valen-tino's long red sulk jersey cape over a brief red silk jersey play suit.

For his new look, Valentino disentangles himself completely from his original color schemewhipped cream and hot chocolate-that was getting fairly aticky. In his switch to red, white and navy or blark, he juggles all three in most of the rostumes. Though Valentino claims he was dreaming of the mad old F. length, curly and held back by a red satin ribbon tied in a bow on top of the head. New Yorkers will recognize it as the Cordelia Biddle Robertson hairdo that the socialite has worn unchanged for 30 years. Linstick and nail polish in the show are clear, bright red and shoes are wide open.

Though the evening clothes are spectacular, the daytime things are the meatiest part of the show. Valentino brings back the jacket or blezer, worn over cresses or as part of a more sporty combination. Though Valentino says he

Many of the short on's are sleeveless and he shows them both open and closed.

In another radical rhange. nothing ever matches in Valentino's new rollection. A red blazer is always worn over a navy dress or the other way around. The designer even likes red or white shoes with navy stockings. Quite a lot of peeling off goes nn with the sporty riotines. Under the jacket there is oftrn a white tank top that Valentino has invented to replace the vest. The tank top is likely to be a jacquard wool that looks like argyle knitting, and under it is a slik or pure cashmere shirt.

And what he has is impressive One could make a case for this troupe being one of the strong-est te innically anywhere, with a solid core of dancers he has trained or who have been with him for a long time-Tania Bari, Jaleh Kerendi, Paolo Bc-toluzzi, Jorge Donn, Germinal Casado (who also designs many of his sets and costumes), and the more recent Maina Gielgad (the actor's niece) and Suzanne Farrell

Miss Fairell will be the one femilitr face in this company for New Yorkers, and the idea of "touring" New York strikes her as delightful after many seasons as one of the mainstays of Balanchine's New York City Ballet. She and her husband, Paul Mejia, left that company in 1969 over their disappointment at how little he was being used by Balanchine. They join-.ed Béjart two months ago at his surprise invitation and they like it here-and the ease with which Miss Farrell fits into Bejart's scheme of things will do little to discourage those who find some choreographic affinity between the "intellectual" Balan-rhine and the "theatrical" rhine and the Bejart. "It was difficult to say yes,

Meanwhile, Bejart is saving a choice item for his return to Europe: a pas de deux for two mrn-his own Bortoluzzi and

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss ROME. - "Why go? You'll never dare admit that you laughed," a Roman hostess cautioned. She was referring to the most popular movie in Italy at the moment, "Venga a Pre-dere il Caffe da Nol" (Come and Take Coffee at Our Homes, but she reckoned without the shamelessness of her guest.

I attended, rorked with the hoi polloi over its coarse jests, and report that this enormously auccessful farce is most divert-

Material and treatment are suitably matched in this in-elegant Palais-Royal turn done in the neo-Italian monner. It operates consistently on the lowcomedy level but with vigor and gaiety. It is a deluberate exercise in bad maoners and to object to its frank Rabelaisianism as unrefined is akin to complaining that there are no snappy cracks in "Phedre." It is a mirth-provoking examination of provincial mores, spiked, with tonic observation, broad and common though they be. betrays the cartoonist's brush througbout. Its humor is that of the funny papers, Mack Sen-nett and that long-lived French comedy, "Le Contrôleur des Wagons-Lits." It is intentional-ly vulgar in both concept and execution, but it is almost always funny.

The scenario might be of smoking-car origins. Three maiden daughters of a deceased scientist live discontentedly on their gloomy estate outside a small town. A crafty, fortunehunting tax collector discovers their wealth and, determined to share it, begs to call and discuss their finances. He is invited to after-dinner coffee and makes an instant hit with all three and after short acquaintance shrewdly proposes to the eldest.

Once installed in the house he observes that each sister has her attraction and that collectively they constitute a perfect woman. What follows may be guessed. The film depicts the

THE COURAGE OF TURTLES By Edward Hoagland. Random House. 239. pp. 5535 By Christopher Lehman-Haupt

THESE 15 essays are the re- this preoccupation with em-joicings of an enthusiast, thing from the sumptuous - joicings of an enthusiast, the outpourings of a boyishi-lover of circuses and bear tracks, bugboats and girlie shows, rodeos and rural solitade -all the subjects that used to be written about by clumster hands in Sunday roto sections, but are neglected now and slowly dying. These are the windsprints of the novelist Edward Hoagland, written "inmoments snatched from a projected novel and other mainforce ventures." for publications as diverse as The Village Voice, Commentary, New American Review, and Harper's. These are a change of pace, a chance to vent opinions and indulge odd passions. But, don't be fooled: us casual as they seem, they are genis of written art.

BOOKS_____

The typical Hoagiand essay announces a subject, broaches it, and at once collapses side-ways into the author's delight and curtosity in things eatching us up so readily in its apparent. ly free associations and random anecdotes that we quickly forget the starting point and hardly care to remember. For instance, the final piece in the collection, "Home Is Two Places": It begins as an essay on country houses, drifts into recollections of growing up in WASPy sub-urbs, pauses over memories of Yankee baseball, moves on to musings on old age, the death of the author's father, and the branches of the Hoagland family tree: it doubles back to note where Hosgland's mother lived after her husband's death, and rambles into a lengthy description of the northern Vermont environs where the author has recently bought a house. It is not until we have finished that we recall its subject and glimpse the multiple meanings of its title: "Home Is Two Places," the city and the country, the past and the present, the influence of two distinct family heritages. So when you consider all that Hoagland has done with his 30plus years-grown up in various suburbs, attended several prep schools and Harvard, worked at such odd jobs as looking after retired MGM lions and varing for camels, published four books (three novels and an account of past life in British Cohmbia), spent time in the U.S. Army, lived and traveled abroad, married twice, had one child, hunt-ed and hiked in the wilderness, explored the stretts and waters of New York City. When you add to this the list of his passions and curiosities-circu rodeos, animals, tugboats, text-dermy, boxing and all manner

Super Bowl Film Shows Mackey TD Was Legal

By Dave Anderson

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (NYT) .- In the film viewed yesterday of the Super Bowl game's most controversial play, Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys clearly deflected the football to John Mackey when the Baltimore Colts scored the first touchdown last Sunday in their 16-13 victory.

The film, from an end-zone camera and supplied by National Football League Films, Inc., will be shown Saturday on national television.

On the play, John Unitas, the Colt quarterback, threw a high pass to one of his wide receivers, Eddie Hinton, who leaped and touched the ball with his left hand. As the ball floated end over end, Renfro, also leaping, touched it with his right hazd, increasing its spin

The ball then dropped into the hands of Mackey, who com pleted a 75-yard touchdown play.

Had the pass been deflected from Hinton to Mackey without having touched a Cowboy defender, it would have been an illegal But the film shows that the official, Hugh Gamber, the

The film also showed that Tom Mitchell, a Colt tight end, stumbled over Jethro Pugh. a Cowboy defensive tackle, on his way into the end zons for Earl Morrall's incomplete fourth-down pass shortly before halftime

On the vital fumble by Duane Thomas of the Cowboys at the Colts' one-yard line early in the third quarter, Mike Curtis, the Colts' middle linebacker, appears to have jarred the ball loose. Doing the commentary for the Super Bowi film was the New York Jets quarterback, Joe Namath. He said that "both teams made too many mistakes to win" and estimated that "six or eight teams could have beaten either team on that particular day if they'd avoided errors," meaning the total of 11 interceptions and lost fumbles.

Jack

Homer weighed in early and made a boxing scene obligatory in all epics. In "The Illad." Achilles staged athleti. games to celebrate Patroclus's funeral. In the boxing match, a set-up named Euryatus was looking for an opening when Epclus waded in and belied him on the check. Euryalus could not stand up, his fair limbs failed him, and that was that. Depending upon the trainslation, Euryalus either jumps up and falls back like a fish into wayes, or falls back, sucking air, like a fish dashed against the shore. Classicists have thus argued whether Eqryalus was caught with a hook or an uppercut, or whether Homer just didn't know boxing. Literature and the fancy met yet again yesterday when Joe Prazier was introduced to William Saroyan, at a huncheon an-nouncing that the novelist and dramatist would write about the Frazier-Muhammad Ali fight for True magazine. Saroyan asked: "Mr. Frazier, what does the heavyweight champion of the world ever lose to, the oppoment, luck, an accident or himself?"

"That's kind of hard," said Frazier. "To be a champ you got to try to please the people sometimes and please yourself most of the time. It's kind of hard to please everyone all the time. So I just try to do my thing. If I loss, I'll go back into my music, fighting won't be a challenge no more."

This week there has been a sustained battery by insult on the very fact of being old. Old people have been able to hear and see oldness abused, ridiculed, denounced and scorned in a barrage of speeches, editerials, columns and broadcasts, most of them arguing the liberal politi-cal position that the congressional seniority system must be abolished because old committee chairmen are mentally and socially inferior.

Some will dismiss the churlishness of the argument against the old men on the ground that in any political struggle language is merely a blunt instru-ment, and should not be listened to seriously. In this case the argument is uppersuasive.

The attack on the seniority system is, in fact, merely a late-in-the-day part of the same general assault upon the aged that has pretty well cleaned them out of both corporate and public life.

The most effective weapon in the attack has been the policy of ferced retirement, usually at 65. It is, of course, job discrimination of the most blatant sort, yet governments and companies, which wouldn't dream of putting a person out of work on account of race, sex, religion or hair style, blindly chop you off for the offense of becoming 65 years old,

Psychological warfare makes it easy to keep the old people subdued. For one thing we have successfully promoted the idea that getting old is an act in very bad taste. The smart people in America are the young anyone who keeps his eyes and ears epen. The reason the seniority system has failed in Congress is not because it concentrates power in the hands of the old. That isn't the vice at all. The problem is that it coocentrates power in the hands of old meo who have never had the experience of democracy.

The prizes are awarded not for great age, but for long serv-Ice to Congress. Long service in Congress almost invariably requires a one-party district or state -a rotten borough. if you will, in which a senator or representative never becomes acquainted with the democratie nrocess.

The rotten borough tends to breed tyrants, and from this tendency rises the real problem with the seniority system, which is not that it raises up old men, but that it exalts old tyrants.

Reforming the congressional power atructure needn't involve any attack on age. The seniority rule, in fact, can be safely left as the guiding principle, with the exception that members would be unqualified for power positions if they were returned from districts where the democratic process is net in use.

This amended rule would still permit members in their 70s and 80s to rule over committees. And why not? Any man of advanced years who has been re-elected 20 times against op-position will surely have qualities that can only do the coun-try great service at the top of its government. The attack should be upon old tyrants. not old age. Old age gives the country great strengths. Bob Dylan, to take a case, is fine, as are Sen. Kennedy and Sen. Dole. But even with all that youthful splendor. Socrates beips a lot. He was 70 when he took the hemlock, Socrates would have been treated more cruelly in America. He would have been forcibly retired to shuffleboard at Sunville at 65.

The Athenian youths, instead of sitting around using their beads, would have been running great corporations, getting out those dynamic press releases, announcing new mergers, and there would have been a lot more bankruptcy, as well as

Scientific Tests of the Divining Rod

By Alfred Friendly LONDON (WP) -- With scholarly solemnity the science magazine Nature densites six pages of its current issue to a solemn and scholarly experiment, run by the British Army and Ministry of Defense, on dowsing, the art of finding buried objects or water with divining rods. The verdict: "The results obtained by dowsing are no more reliable than a series of guesses." The testing, reported by R.A. Foulkes of the Institute for Industrial Research and Standards in Dublin, was elaborate, varied, extensive and sedulously scientific in method and statistics.

They used forked rods, pairs of L-shaped sticks, plumb lines and magnetic or electronic equipment. About the only element of consistency in the several tests to detect various metallic and plastic mines. concrete and wooden blocks and water, was that the re-ults were almost exactly what would be produced by pure chance.

There was one exception. A group of eight men, who were experts at divining buried objects simply by passing their dowsing rols over maps, did rather worse than 50 menbers of the British Military Engineering Experimental Laboratory who were shown the same maps of territory where mines bad been buried and called on to guess the locations.

In a second series of experiments, 22 dowsers, acknowledged by the trade as expert, prowled a plot of heath and heather 400 feet square, half cleared and half raked. It was divided into 400 segments. Some were untouched but inert metallic and plastic mines and wood and concrete jummies had been buried in others. When

Charles Munn landed in Palm Beach. Fia., Wednesday night and claimed to have the answer to the annoying layovers that are part of air travel: charter a plane, even if it's a $20,000 flight for six from Paris. It's the only way to travel," Munn said, and it's much cheaper than owning your own plane." The 85-year-old millionaire said he chartered a 150-seat Boeing 707 for his party because he didn't want to change planes during the flight from Paris to Palm Beach.

The pilot, Pan Am Capt. Walter Thom, said the charter flight cost Murin shout $20,000. Mumm was accompanied by his. wife, Dorothy, a nurse and three.

friends. - Thoin said twin beds were in-stalled in Paris. He said there were no unusual requests during the nine-hour, 55-minute flight. Mrs. Munn asked for a hot dog and Mr. Munn asked for chewing gum, Thom said.
